

How to Invest in the Future of Prison Ministry

By Keith Miller, CLI Volunteer and Partner

In 2011 I coordinated a book drive for CLI churches in the Cornelius-Huntersville area of North Carolina. I realized the need for a continuing system to funnel Christian books to CLI. Thus, I became a "forward operating base" in the Charlotte area for individuals and churches who want their books placed in the prison system. I see my efforts as a form of mission outreach in my own backyard.

Over my years of involvement, I've met interesting people from all walks of life, picked up thousands of books, and had the opportunity to explain the scope of CLI's mission. Through the cooperative efforts of CLI and their volunteers, we are able to provide Christian reading materials to incarcerated prisoners. Our efforts will sustain imprisoned Christians and introduce Jesus Christ to non-believers.

Because I want my current efforts and passion for CLI to continue after my death, I have designated CLI as one of the beneficiaries of my estate. I know they will need my financial support more than ever in the future. "You know the Lord will reward everyone for whatever good he does, whether slave or free." Ephesians 6:8
